Big Corporations Threaten Organics: Real Organic is Fighting Back

To start off the new year on a positive note, I'll be heading out to California for the 43rd annual Eco-Farm Conference. On January 17 there will be an important in-person (and livestream) gathering of organic leaders to discuss how "add on" organic plus certification and labels such as the Real Organic Project (and others such as Regenerative Organic Certified, Biodynamic/Demeter Organic, and Naturland) can enable consumers to find the brands and products that are truly organic. ### GlyphoWhat? The Daily Poisoning of Our Children

Michelle Perro writes for Regeneration Health International: "Our children are consuming a daily dose of poison. Parents are unaware of the great harm befallen our most vulnerable. And for those parents who attempt to thwart the daily dose of poison, children consume it at school.

If you are awake and aware of the harm of glyphosate, the declared main ingredient in Roundup, now a household word thanks to the dissemination of toxic seeds by Monsanto-now-Bayer, skip on down to the "...So what do we do now?" section. If you need to be convinced, read on.

American Dental Association Finally Moves Away from Amalgam (Mercury) Fillings

Mercola reports:

"In a stunning move made without fanfare or headlines, the American Dental Association (ADA) has retreated from its decades-long, steadfast support for (mercury-based) amalgam, aka 'silver' fillings in teeth.

The change in policy appeared in an updated, 2022 version of the ADA's 'Use of Amalgam as Restorative Material' on its website. Significantly, the revised policy now says the ADA supports the globally recognized need to reduce environmental mercury as set forth in the Minamata Convention on Mercury (September 2019) as a common good, and recognizes the responsibility of dentists to care for their patients' well-being ...

Got MilQ? Gene Engineers Move to Replace Dairy and Breast Milk

Dr. Mercola writes: "The globalist technocrats are intent on monopolizing the entire food supply. They already have a monopoly on genetically engineered (GE) grains and have made headway in GE seafood. The next targets are lab-grown meats and dairy substitutes. There's even a lab-made breast milk alternative on the way called Biomilq, which is made from cultured breast tissue.

Another company, Helaina, aims to create glycoproteins "identical to those found in breast milk," which can then be added to a variety of infant formulas. They may also be used in seniors' nutrition and eventually, all sorts of foods.

What's Driving Netherlands' Plan to Shut Down 3,000 Farms?

Children's Health Defense writes:

"The Dutch government said it plans to purchase and forcibly shut down up to 3,000 farms it deems "peak polluters" in order to cut ammonia and nitrous oxide emissions in half by 2030, as required by EU environmental regulations.

Parliamentarian Johan Remkes, who has been negotiating with farmers for the government, said farmers have options – they can drastically innovate farming practices, shift to a different type of business, relocate or voluntarily stop farming.

Big Pharma Threatens Your Health

The disastrous official narrative and dictates of the COVID-19 cabal regarding its origins, nature, virulence, prevention, and treatment of SARS-CoV-2 is falling apart. Articles exposing the machinations of Big Pharma, Fauci, Gates et al. are starting to appear, even in a number of the peer-reviewed journals that were censored until now. Fabian Duruelle writes in Surgical Neurology International (SNI):

"The COVID-19 period highlights a huge problem that has been developing for decades, the control of science by industry. In the 1950s, the tobacco industry set the example, which the pharmaceutical industry followed. Since then, the latter has been regularly condemned for illegal marketing, misrepresentation of experimental results, dissimulation of information about the dangers of drugs, and considered as criminal. Therefore, this study was conducted to show that knowledge is powerfully manipulated by harmful corporations, whose goals are: 1/financial; 2/to suppress our ability to make choices to acquire global control of public health..."
