

14 Reasons to Buy Local Food & Products and Break the Chains

1 Locally grown or produced food tastes better

In the week long (or more) delay from harvest to dinner table, sugars turn to starches, plant cells shrink and produce loses its vitality.

2 Local food preserves genetic diversity

Local farms grow a huge number of varieties to provide a long season of harvest, an array of eye-catching colors and the best flavors.

3 Local food supports local farm families

Local farmers who sell direct to customers get full price for their food.

4 Local produce is better for you

Recent studies show that fresh produce loses nutrients quickly.

5 Local food builds community

When you buy direct from the farmer, you are re-establishing a time-honored connection between the eater and the grower.

6 Local food preserves open space

When you buy locally grown food, you are doing something proactive about preserving the agricultural landscape.

7 Local food keeps your taxes in check

Local, independent farms contribute more in taxes than they require in services.

8 Keep the money in the neighborhood

For every 100 dollars spent at a locally owned business, $45 goes back into our community—and our tax base. For every $100 spent at a chain store, only $14 comes back.

9 Support community groups

Non-profits receive an average of 350% more support from local businesses than they do from non-locally owned businesses

10 Invest in your community

Local businesses are owned by people who live here, work here, and are more invested in our future.

11 Buy what you want, not what someone else wants you to buy

A marketplace of tens of thousands of small businesses means fair and sustainable prices over the long-term. Small businesses, choosing products based on what their customers love and need—not a national sales plan—guarantees a more diverse range of product choices.

12 Local Decision-Making

Local ownership ensures that important decisions are made locally by people who live in the community and who feel the impacts of those decisions.

13 Jobs and Wages

Locally owned businesses create more jobs locally and, in some sectors, [and] provide better wages and benefits than chains do.

14 Environmental Sustainability

Local stores help sustain vibrant, compact, [walk able] town centers—which in turn are essential to reducing sprawl, automobile use, habitat loss, and air and water pollution
