

Save America's pollinators! Ban pesticides!

Honeybees pollinate more than 120 U.S. crops, adding more than $15 billion/year in value to the production of fruits, nuts and vegetables. In 2017, beekeepers reported losing 40% of honey bee colonies and honey stocks were down 26% from the year before. Monarch butterflies, too, are in jeopardy. In the 1980s, there were 4.5 million West Coast monarchs. In the latest count, just 28,429. What's causing the insect apocalypse? Insecticides that kill pollinators and herbicides that destroy their habitat and food. It's time to ban pesticides that harm pollinators!
